YACHTLITE – Sand Down the Lights

Since their launch two years ago, YACHTLITE's free formable FloorLite illuminating elements have evolved into one of the most highly sought-after products.

Colour Effect

Made of solid acrylic, the light inlays hide the built-in LEDs safely in their interior. The LEDs can be controlled and monitored using existing shipboard systems such as DMX or DALI. As usual, all standard LED colours and RGB colour change are possible. If a logo is designed using different elements, each element can of course be controlled with different colours to give the appropriate 'wow effect'.

Design Applications

There are many applications possibilities. Designers especially appreciate the creative leeway the free form offers. In addition to effective optical mood accents in teak decks or stone floors, the FloorLites are also increasingly used as designer emergency lighting throughout the ship. Direction guidance systems before, or on, stairs or markings around swimming platforms comfortably indicate the right step to take in twilight or darkness. Skilful colour control enables clear boundaries to the owner's area or refers to entry restrictions. The way to a nocturnal cool-down in the Jacuzzi can be safely bathed in light, which even intensifies the wellness aspect.

Smooth Surface

After installation and sealing, the FloorLites are sanded over the entire surface, to achieve a smooth plane without any offset to the surrounding task. The elements are treadable, water-resistant and designed for exterior and, naturally, interior use. The surface has a special individual top layer that can be sanded down, along with the teak during a refit without needing to be removed. This is even possible multiple times depending on the design of the element and on the depth of sanding.
